

Sud Academy Update

August 2011

Welcome to our 2nd newsletter of 2011! Term two has finished at Sud Academy. For this newsletter, we asked students to submit their thoughts about the world's youngest country, their newly independent homeland of South Sudan.

My dream for the new South Sudan is that one day we are going to join hands together and develop our new country. My hope is that we are going to have good leaders who can lead us equally.

We are going to be one loving nation without tribalism and that will happen through wise selection of our leaders. That is my dream and my hope for new South Sudan.

My hope and dreams for the new South Sudan is that the government will improve the financial status of many. I hope that there will be great leaders who will lead our country smoothly and equally.

I hope that our president Salva Kiir will fight corruption, open job opportunities and offer free education, hospitals and clinics where women can give birth. If the government of South Sudan joins together they can do something wonderful in our country.

Primary students were happy to receive a supply of needed textbooks in May, funding courtesy of Rotary Club of London West.

I am very happy for the independence of the new South Sudan, and I hope that God will give us a hand in building our new nation. My dream is that one day I will be able to finish my secondary education and join law school. After that, I will return to my country and be able to serve justice there. I will use the income from my job to build schools, hospitals and an orphanage.

May God Almighty hear my prayers, so that my dreams may come true.
